

Hulu is a free, online, streaming video service that contains many new television series as well as some nostalgic dramas and sitcoms. The service is free to use and is funded by advertisers. During video playback, the white dots in the progress bar indicate where commercials will be played. You can move your player position to any point within the video, but you may be shown a commercial before jumping to your selected point.

The list of available shows, movies, and sports events is provided to you by the Hulu website data service. This service can include items that require parental control or are only available via the Hulu website. Those items will display a "This video is currently unavailable" message.

Hulu service is currently only available to viewers in the United States.

Playing a TV Show or Movie

Use the cursor arrow buttons to choose the TV series you wish to see. Note that there are 43 pages in this example. Use the arrows to move to the next and previous pages.

To play an entry, highlight the episode you wish to view and press Enter.

The ABC and XYZ will move you through the alphabet. On this example, since we are starting with items beginning with number (e.g. 2008 National Heads-Up Poker Championships) pressing XYZ will take me to the TV shows starting with the letter "A". In this case, "The Academy" will move to the first position.

Pressing the Back button on the remote, or the back icon on the screen, will return you to the TV Shows list.

Note
The Hulu service is provided as-is. ReQuest makes no guarantee on service availability, content, video quality, or discontinuation of the service by the provider.
